

Attributes, Abstractions, and Combinations

A New Taxonomy for Studying How Parties Invoke Social Groups

Authors

1. Hauke Licht (corresponding author)
Department of Political Science & Digital Science Center, University of Innsbruck
Universitätsstraße 15, 6020 Innsbruck, Austria
Email: hauke.licht@uibk.ac.at
2. Leonce Röth
Geschwister Scholl Institute of Political Science, LMU Munich
Geschwister-Scholl-Platz 1, 80539 Munich, Germany
Email: leonce.roeth@gsi.uni-muenchen.de

Funding Statement

This work was supported by the Deutsche Forschungsgemeinschaft (DFG, German Research Foundation) under Germany's Excellence Strategy – EXC 2126/1-390838866 and the LMU Munich's Geschwister Scholl Institute of Political Science under the LMU Post-doc Support Fund scheme.

Acknowledgments

The authors thank Christian Breunig and Isabelle Guinaudeau for organizing the special issue and their valuable guidance and feedback, Lena M. Huber, Alona O. Dolinsky, and Marius Sältzer as well as participants of the 7th ANNUAL COMPTTEXT Conference 2025, Panel “Political Parties and Social Group Identities,” and the University College Dublin's Connected_Politics Lab for helpful comments and suggestions, and the four anonymous reviewers for their constructive feedback.

Disclosure of Interest

The authors confirm that there are no relevant financial or non-financial competing interests to report.

Supplementary Material

Supplemental materials – including additional details on the dataset, mention detection and attribute classification procedures, and additional figures, tables, and robustness checks – are included as an appendix to this document.

Data Availability Statement

The data and code supporting the findings of this study are openly available in Harvard Dataverse at DOI TO BE ADDED.